The Alderney Society Museum offers a free initial research service. This service entails a look through the collection in order to determine whether we hold information relating to your enquiry. This research is carried out mainly by volunteers. The Museum will then contact you with a brief outline of information that is available relating to your request.

If you would like this information gathered and researched by the curator then we ask that a donation is given to the museum. This donation is the only funding the museum receives to carry out research requests for the public.

Simple Research Request (information requires under two hours of work)	£8
Extended Research Request (information requires many hours of work)	£24
